FINDINGS OF FACT

1. The respondent (CARES # ██████████) is a resident of Milwaukee County who received FS benefits in Milwaukee County from at least October 1, 2013 through September 30, 2015. She received benefits as a FS household of three (herself and two young children).

2. On August 9, 2015, the respondent gave her FS card to her sister, [REDACTED], for the sister to purchase $100.08 in groceries at a [REDACTED] grocery store. The Department produced video shots from that store's security camera at the checkouts to show the respondent passing her FS card to the sister for the $100.08 purchase at 1:37 a.m. Because $100.08 was not sufficient to pay for all of the items in the sister's cart, the sister is shown using her own card to pay the balance due of $31.57, five minutes later. The sister handed the respondent's card back to the respondent, who is then photographed making her own FS purchase at the same time (1:51 a.m.).
3. On December 7, 2015, the petitioner mailed an Administrative Disqualification Hearing Notice alleging that the respondent trafficked her FS benefits, and knew that her benefits would be used by persons who are not members of her FS household. The Notice was mailed to the respondent's last known mailing address, and was not returned as undelivered.
4. The respondent failed to appear for the scheduled December 29, 2015 Intentional Program Violation (IPV) hearing and did not provide any good cause for said failure to appear. At the time of hearing, the Department corrected the amount of trafficked benefit to be recovered from the respondent to $100.08 (down from the $337.98 stated on the Notice).

DISCUSSION

An intentional program violation of the FoodShare program occurs when a recipient intentionally does the following:

1. makes a false or misleading statement, or misrepresents, conceals or withholds facts;
or
2. commits any act that constitutes a violation of the Food Stamp Act, the Food Stamp Program Regulations, or any Wisconsin statute for the purpose of using, presenting, transferring, acquiring, receiving, possessing or trafficking of FoodShare benefits or QUEST cards.

FoodShare Wisconsin Handbook, § 3.14.1; see also 7 C.F.R. § 273.16(c) and Wis. Stat. §§ 946.92(2).

An intentional program violation can be proven by a court order, a diversion agreement entered into with the local district attorney, a waiver of a right to a hearing, or an administrative disqualification hearing, FoodShare Wisconsin Handbook, § 3.14.1. The petitioner can disqualify only the individual found to have committed the intentional violation; it cannot disqualify the entire household. Those disqualified on grounds involving the improper transfer of FS benefits are ineligible to participate in the FoodShare program for one year for the first violation, two years for the second violation, and permanently for the third violation. Although other family members cannot be disqualified, their monthly allotments will be reduced unless they agree to make restitution within 30 days of the date that the FS program mails a written demand letter. 7 C.F.R. § 273.16(b).

7 C.F.R. §273.16(e)(4) provides that the hearing shall proceed if the respondent cannot be located or fails to appear without good cause. The respondent did not appear or claim a good cause reason for not attending the hearing. Therefore, I must determine whether the respondent committed an IPV based solely on the evidence that the petitioner presented at hearing.

In order for the petitioner to establish that an FS recipient has committed an IPV, it has the burden to prove two separate elements by clear and convincing evidence. The recipient must have: 1) committed; and 2) intended to commit a program violation per 7 C.F.R. § 273.16(e)(6). In Kuehn v. Kuehn, 11 Wis.2d 15 (1959), the court held that:

Defined in terms of quantity of proof, reasonable certitude or reasonable certainty in ordinary civil cases may be attained by or be based on a mere or fair preponderance of the evidence. Such certainty need not necessarily exclude the probability that the contrary conclusion may be true. In fraud cases it has been stated the preponderance of the evidence should be clear and satisfactory to indicate or sustain a greater degree of certitude. Such degree of certitude has also been defined as being produced by clear, satisfactory, and convincing evidence. Such evidence, however, need not eliminate a reasonable doubt that the alternative or opposite conclusion may be true. ...

Kuehn, 11 Wis.2d at 26.

Wisconsin Jury Instruction – Civil 205 is also instructive. It provides:

Clear, satisfactory and convincing evidence is evidence which when weighed against that opposed to it clearly has more convincing power. It is evidence which satisfies and convinces you that “yes” should be the answer because of its greater weight and clear convincing power. “Reasonable certainty” means that you are persuaded based upon a rational consideration of the evidence. Absolute certainty is not required, but a guess is not enough to meet the burden of proof. This burden of proof is known as the “middle burden.” The evidence required to meet this burden of proof must be more convincing than merely the greater weight of the credible evidence but may be less than beyond a reasonable doubt.

Further, the McCormick treatise states that “it has been persuasively suggested that [the clear and convincing evidence standard of proof] could be more simply and intelligibly translated to the jury if they were instructed that they must be persuaded that the truth of the contention is highly probable.” 2 McCormick on Evidence § 340 (John W. Strong gen. ed., 4th ed. 1992).

Thus, in order to find that an IPV was committed, the trier of fact must derive from the evidence a firm conviction as to the existence of each of the two elements even though there may be a reasonable doubt as to their existence.

In order to prove the second element, i.e., intention, there must be clear and convincing evidence that the FS recipient intended to commit the IPV. The question of intent is generally one to be determined by the trier of fact. State v. Lossman, 118 Wis.2d 526 (1984). There is a general rule that a person is presumed to know and intend the probable and natural consequences of his or her own voluntary words or acts. See, John F. Jelke Co. v. Beck, 208 Wis. 650 (1932); 31A C.J.S. Evidence §131. Intention is a subjective state of mind to be determined upon all the facts. Lecus v. American Mut. Ins. Co. of Boston, 81 Wis.2d 183 (1977). Thus, there must be clear and convincing evidence that the FS recipient knew that the act or omission was a violation of the FS Program but committed the violation anyway.

Based upon the record before me, I find that the petitioner has established by clear and convincing evidence that the respondent intentionally violated FS program rules, and that this violation was the first such violation committed by the respondent. On August 9, 2015, the respondent gave her FS card to her sister, [REDACTED], for the sister to purchase $100.08 in groceries at a [REDACTED] grocery store. The Department produced video shots from that store’s security camera at the checkouts to show the respondent passing her FS card to the sister for the $100.08 purchase at 1:37 a.m. Because $100.08 was not sufficient to pay for all of the items in the sister’s cart, the sister is shown using her own card to pay the balance due of $31.57, five minutes later. The sister handed the respondent’s card back to the respondent, who is then photographed making her own FS purchase at the same time (1:51 a.m.). The August 9 transaction details and times were also confirmed by electronic records submitted by the Department. Additionally, the Department produced the respondent’s recent FS card replacement history. She has claimed that her FS card was lost or stolen four times in 2015, which is conduct suggestive of card trafficking. The most logical conclusion is that the respondent trafficked a portion of her FS benefits on August 9; an adverse inference is drawn from the respondent’s failure to appear at hearing and supply an alternative explanation of events. The respondent’s rule violations were intentional as she was given regular written reminders of the pertinent FS rules. See, Exhibit 7.

Therefore, the petitioner correctly seeks to disqualify the respondent from the FS program for one year.

CONCLUSIONS OF LAW

1. The respondent violated, and intended to violate, the FS program rules specifying that FS benefits must be used by members of the FS household, and that FS benefits cannot be trafficked.
2. The violation specified in Conclusion of Law No. 1 is the first such violation committed by the respondent.

NOW, THEREFORE, it is ORDERED

That the petitioner's determination is sustained, and that the petitioner may make a finding that the respondent committed a first IPV of the FoodShare program and disqualify the respondent from the program for one year, effective the first month following the date of receipt of this decision.

REQUEST FOR A REHEARING ON GROUNDS OF GOOD CAUSE FOR FAILURE TO APPEAR

In instances where the good cause for failure to appear is based upon a showing of non-receipt of the hearing notice, the respondent has 30 days after the date of the written notice of the hearing decision to claim good cause for failure to appear. See 7 C.F.R. sec. 273.16(e)(4). Such a claim should be made in writing to the Division of Hearings and Appeals, P.O. Box 7875, Madison, WI 53707-7875.
